HELP OUT WITH KIDS FOR TREES

To the Editor:

In 1989 the third-grade students of Crescent Park School embarked on a forest agriculture project they named "Kids for Trees." On land donated by P.H. Chadbourne Lumber Company and with the mentorship of Jim Chandler of Oxford County Soil and Water Commission, they planted, fertilized and tended coniferous trees with a plan to harvest them as Christmas trees nine years later. The proceeds from the sale of the trees were to help pay the expenses of their Project Graduation celebration when they left SAD44 in 1998.

With the help of dedicated teachers and administrators at CPS and under the continued watchful eye of Jim Chandler, succeeding third-graders did the same, planting up to 150 trees a year on the Route 26 plot. The Class of 1998 did indeed harvest and sell some of their trees, even presenting one to Governor King for the Blaine House.

The planting cycles continued up through 1996 (Class of 2005), and each December a cut-your-own weekend is scheduled. Over the years more trees were planted than harvested and experimentation led to knowledge about the best growing species for the plot. Today, behind the Kids for Trees sign there is a grand plantation of trees waiting to grace the homes of local residents and visitors for years to come.

A project that was begun with volunteer help is looking for volunteers once again. The plantation has grown weedy, with grasses and shrubs reaching as tall as some of the trees. The perimeter of the plot has been cleared. Now what is needed is mowing and brush clipping down the rows and between the trees. Volunteering is what makes the SAD44 area the wonderful place that it is. If anyone would like to lend a hand on this project, they can head out on Route 26 just north of the site of Hancock Lumber Company and Chadbourne Tree Farms and spend some time releasing the trees from their weedy setting. There is plenty of work for several individuals or groups who want to help. Anyone wanting more information can call me at 824-2410 or 665-2095 or Jim Chandler at 674-2963.

JA MAKES A DIFFERENCE

To the Editor:

It is evident that our community is invested in the education of our children. We see this everyday through parent involvement, yearly support of the school budget, and financial support from community businesses.

As a society, we have ever increasing expectations of school systems to improve the learning results of students as well as for students to perform at higher levels of achievement. As these goals and expectations increase, we have a responsibility to provide opportunities for students to allow them to be the "best that they can be."

While correlated with the Maine Learning Results, Junior Achievement's purpose is to educate and inspire young people to value free enterprise business and economics to improve the quality of their lives. JA's approach to linking successful adults from the community with teachers in the classroom teaching students skills, attitudes and behaviors of success is unique. It is also effective. JA classroom programs have the potential to turn a life around, heighten aspirations and make a real difference in a youngster's life.

You can make a difference through volunteering or financial support. For more information call 824-3768; e-mail sauwhill@megalink.net, or visit www.JA.org

A GREAT PARADE

To the Editor:

Congratulations to the Chamber of Commerce, or whoever ran the parade this year. It was the best ever. I was especially happy to see Mollockett on her own little float. It was lovely. Other years I've had to look for her, walking along with the rest. Once, years ago, she was on a horse, which was nice, but this was better. I do hope they plan to use it other years. After all, it's Mollockett Day.

MEET-YOUR-NEIGHBORS POTLUCK IN ALBANY

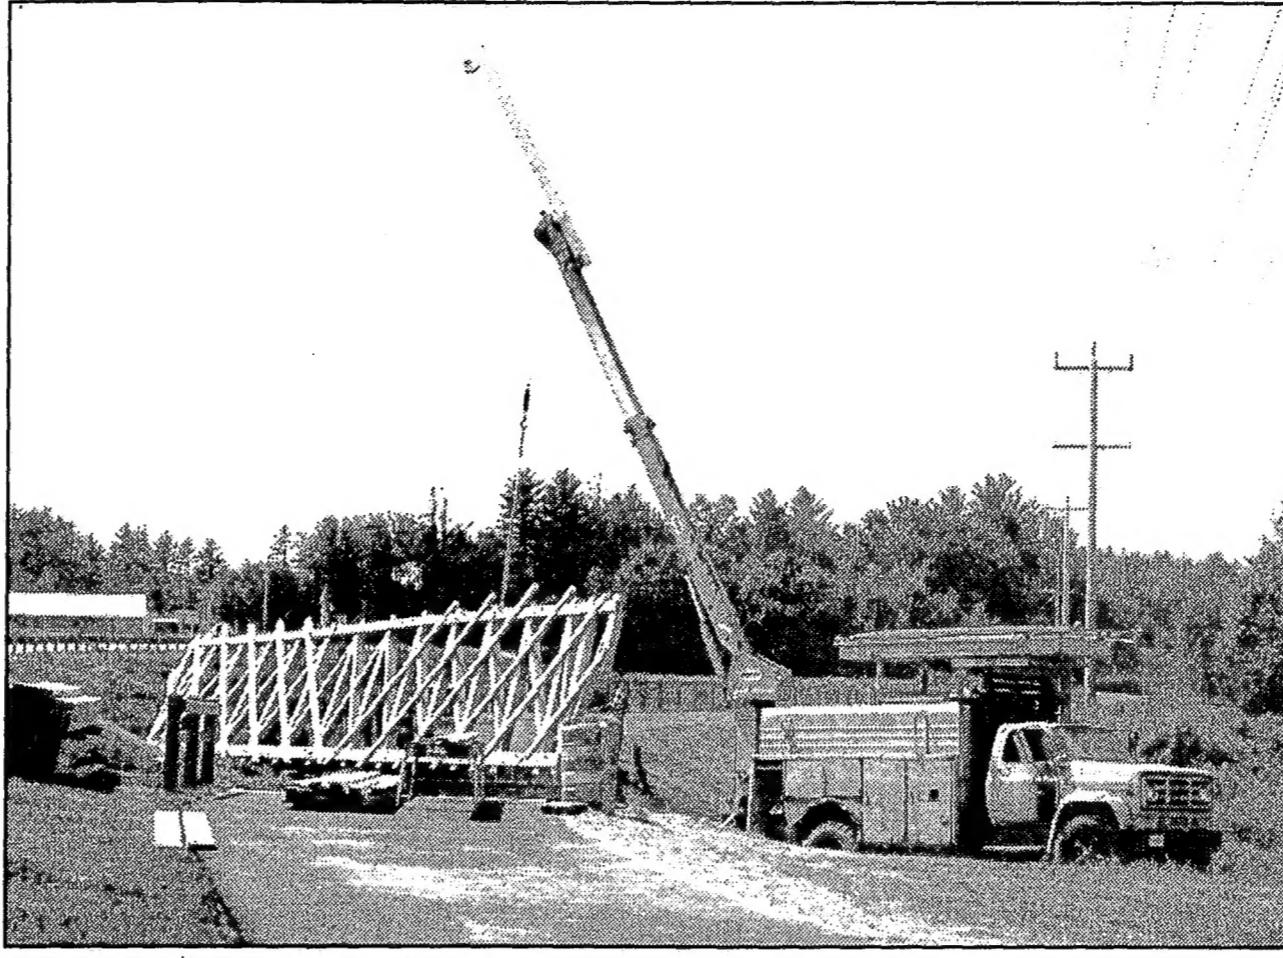

To the Editor:

I would like to inform the residents of an upcoming event for the community of Albany Township. On Saturday, Aug. 18 at 5:30 p.m., Albany Community is having a "Meet Your Neighbor" Potluck Supper. The purpose of this gathering is to get to know some of our new residents and to become reacquainted with old friends.

The admission to supper is a hot dish, salad or dessert that can be shared. The supper will be held at the Albany Congregational Church on Hunts Corner Road. If anyone has questions, they can contact me, or Kathy Bennett, or any member of the Albany Improvement Association.

We hope to see all of Albany's residents there.

ARTIST'S BRIDGE III—Construction of the covered bridge at the Pathway project got underway last week. The Pathway is expected to be dedicated and officially opened within two weeks, according to Don Murphy, Bethel CEO. The bridge is being built by Bill Dunton's crew to resemble Artist's Bridge in Newry and another replica at BIG Adventure Center. It may be used now by pedestrians "at your own risk," Murphy said. As for the rest of the Pathway work, Murphy said some surface work is continuing on boardwalk areas, and the skateboard park elements donated by Sunday River Ski Resort are about to go in. Four benches have also been donated, at a cost of $250 each. The Pathway, when completed, will be open to non-motorized vehicles (motorized wheelchairs are permitted). A landscaping plan originally proposed lacks funding currently, but fundraising for it is underway, Murphy said. (Photo by Alison Aloisio) mental regulators is expected within 120 days, according to committee chairman Don Bennett.

But the project — if it is to become a reality — will also need approval from the Bethel Planning Board, which called last week's public hearing.

The purpose of the hearing was "to provide the public with a better understanding of the proposal and to encourage public comment toward that end," said Vogt.

Approximately 20 residents turned out for the hearing. Of those, a half dozen spoke in favor of the plan, arguing generally that townspeople recognized the desirability of having such a facility and that the location in question was well suited to such a use.

A smaller number of those in attendance raised questions or objections regarding the swimming pool.

Abutter Bob Laux had plenty of both.

Laux, whose home is across the street from the pond site, questioned its effect on nearby property values, especially in light of already increasing incidences of vandalism in the neighborhood.

He also sought assurance the town pond would not affect the water level in his own dug pond.

And he questioned the wisdom of setting up a situation in which children would be bicycling along a road with what some regard as high-speed traffic.

'It's my understanding the whole thing will be gated.'

DON BENNETT
Beach Committee Chairman

Jack Greig agreed with Laux on this point, noting that cyclists from Bethel village would have to cross the narrow Route 2 bridge.

"That bridge across Route 2 and 26 isn't safe to drive snowmobiles over," he said, "but it's all right for you to send your grandchildren across there on a bicycle to get to the North Road?"

Laux also asked what sort of plan the Beach Committee had for maintenance and other long-term expenses, and he complained of the negative visual impact of the project on his own property.

In our backyard

What's 'bugging' you?

Got a lot of pests bugging your home, garden and lawn this summer? Time to zap 'em with bug spray or weed killer, right? But wait — before reaching for that spray or bag of weed killer, consider a few things.

Many lawn, garden and pet care products, and even some household disinfectants, contain pesticides that can pose health risks to people, pets and the environment. In fact, sometimes the cure can be worse than the problem.

So, before doing any pest control, ask yourself some basic questions. For instance, "are those bugs in my garden really pests?" Only about 2 percent of insect species are pests — the rest are beneficial or at least not harmful.

Or, "can I pull out those few weeds by hand, or raise the mower cutting height to help the grass outcompete the weeds, rather than spraying with weed killer?"

Indoors, ask why and how are the pests getting in. Question whether you can vacuum or swat them instead of spraying with poison.

These questions characterize a sensible approach, called Integrated Pest Management (IPM), that will keep pests at bay while minimizing pesticide risks. Here's what you can do in your own home and garden:

Identify the pest. Send a sample to the University of Maine Pest Management Office (800-287-0279) or <http://www.umext.maine.edu/topics/pest.htm>. Or ask your librarian for some books for do-it-yourself pest identification.

Observe the pest and its damage. Is it ravaging your garden and getting worse every day? Or does the pest problem seem to be going away on its own? It usually pays to monitor the problem for a day or more before spending time and money applying a pesticide.

Learn what treatment actions are effective and decide which are best for you. Cooperative Extension and your library are good sources of information.

Often a home remedy, such as spraying a dilute dish-soap mixture to combat whiteflies or aphids, is quite effective. And don't rule out the option of no action. Consider whether a picture-perfect lawn is worth the potentially harmful exposure to toxic chemicals.

If you opt to use a pesticide, read and follow the label. At a minimum, wear rubber gloves and wash your hands with soap and water when finished. Check your storage area often for outdated or unnecessary chemicals and leaking containers. Contact the Maine Board of Pesticides Control at 287-2731 or www.state.me.us/agriculture/pesticides with any pesticide questions.

Try to avoid future pests. For instance, keep the kitchen cupboards clean and food sealed in pest-proof containers. Or replace a sick shrub with a disease-resistant variety.

Continue to watch for pest activity throughout the year to determine the effectiveness of your pest management efforts and to watch for new pests.

By using IPM you can reduce or eliminate the need for pesticides. What's more, you'll come to know and appreciate your own home and garden ecosystem better while doing your part to keep the earth's ecosystem in balance.

"In our backyard" is a weekly column of the Maine Department of Environmental Protection. E-mail your environmental questions to odep@state.me.us or send them to In Our Backyard, Maine DEP, 17 State House Station, Augusta, ME 04333.

Mil rate up .27

WOODSTOCK—Selectmen Tuesday set the town's mil rate at 14.05, up from the previous 13.78. The rate only allows $146.29 in overlay funds, but, said selectman Mike Nadeau, "We want to try to keep the tax dollars as low as we can." Town Manager Vern Maxfield said the rate should be workable. The increase came as a result of a fire-truck purchase and a lower valuation than anticipated. Tax bills are expected to go out Friday.

Reunion moved

WOODSTOCK—The issue of whether to allow the Buck family to hold a family reunion on the Woodstock baseball field Aug. 18 was resolved when the family found an alternate location, according to Vern Maxfield, town manager. Maxfield indicated to the Bucks a year ago he did not object to the use of the field, but recently it was determined the selectmen's permission was also required. Selectmen gave approval pending an OK from the town's insurance company. Maxfield said a copy of the family's homeowner's insurance would be required. He said Tuesday the family has since found another spot.

Mt. Abram granted abatement

GREENWOOD—Following a new appraisal of the furniture and machinery at Mt. Abram Family Resort in Locke Mills, the Board of Selectmen (which also serves as the town's assessing board) has lowered the resort's personal property tax bill for 2000 by $2,530.60, to a new figure of $8,292.40. The new assessment was performed by G&K Associates of Manchester, Conn., which specializes in the appraisal of ski industry equipment. The review lowered the value of the area's personal property by $153,370, to a new figure of $502,570. The reappraisal came at the request of Mt. Abram owners, Josh and Susan Burns, who initially sought a $401,540 reduction in personal property valuation. The adjustment reduces the ski area's 2000 tax bill to $17,650.45.

Train starts fire

OXFORD—About 80 firefighters from 14 towns and the U.S. Forest Service Tuesday fought brush fires along three miles of railroad track. The fires, which stretched from the Mechanic Falls/Oxford town line to near Oxford Plains Speedway, were started by a passing freight train. The fire was reported about 1 p.m., and was under control by 3:15 p.m. A USFS helicopter helped direct operations from the air, and also dropped water on the fires. Area rescue crews were on hand to check firefighters' condition in the 90 plus heat. The Poland Spring Bottling Co. donated two truckloads of water to help keep the firemen hydrated.

Marijuana plants pulled in Andover

ANDOVER—A total of 865 marijuana plants were eradicated at two sites in Andover recently, according to the Maine Drug Enforcement Agency. The street value was estimated at $345,000. The MDEA and the Rumford Police Department had received information about two months ago that a large plot existed off Route 120. Another plot was located several miles south of Andover, along the Ellis River.

Lakes Association meets Saturday

WOODSTOCK—The Community Lakes Association's annual meeting will take place Saturday at the Maine Conservation School. Refreshments will be served at 8:30 a.m., and the meeting will run from 9 to 11 a.m. (at the latest). The speaker will be Will Cook of the Department of Environmental Protection. His topic will be permit-by-rule. "It's a great chance to learn what can be done to improve your lakeside property," said Nancy Willard, president of CLA.

Artist's Bridge work starts Monday

NEWRY—One lane of traffic will be closed on the Artist's Bridge in Newry beginning Aug. 13. The Maine Department of Transportation plans to replace the wearing surface and the drains in a project expected to last six to eight weeks.

Local runners in Beach2Beacon

CAPE ELIZABETH—The following Bethel-area runners competed in Saturday's Beach to Beacon Road Race: Nancy Coleman-Murphy, Katie Davison, Barbara Fiore, Erika Penczer, Sara Shifrin and Heather Zimmerman. More than 3,700 athletes took part.

THS sports practices start

BETHEL—Field hockey and cross-country practice for Telstar High School begins Monday, Aug. 13 at Telstar. Field hockey will take place from 5 to 8 p.m. (players should bring sneakers, cleats and mouthguards). A bottle drive fundraiser originally scheduled for Aug. 11 will take place Sept. 8. For cross-country, practice begins at 4 p.m., lasting about one hour (runners should bring shorts, shoes, and a water bottle). "It's a good way to get in shape for basketball and ski season," said cross-country coach John Applin.

Mill closing for two weeks

BERLIN, N.H.—Pulp and Paper of America will shut down its Berlin pulp mill for two weeks to save money because of an industry slowdown. The decision was based on a drop in demand for pulp, according to a company spokesman, not on the company's current financial problems. PPA owes both Berlin and Gorham millions of dollars in property taxes, has missed several payments and nearly had its water shut off last week over another unpaid bill. The mill in Gorham will remain open. The announcement prompted the Standard and Poor's bond rating agency to cut its rating for the parent company, American Tissue. In June, AT announced a financial restructuring plan, and Friday announced it is now pursuing "other financing options at attractive pricing."

Teen hurt in roller accident

YAFFETTE—A Livermore Falls teenager suffered leg injuries last week after he collided with a Commercial Paving roller. Kevin Timberlake, 18, was driving a 1993 Dodge Colt when he rounded a corner on the Bamford Hill Road. He was unable to stop when he saw the machine, according to police. The driver of the roller was uninjured.

Apply for tax or rent refund

AUGUSTA—Maine Revenue Services has applications available for the Maine Resident Property Tax and Rent Refund Program. Applications will be available in late August at town offices, any Area Agency on Aging or Community Action program office. The deadline to submit applications in order to participate in the property tax/rent refund program is Dec. 31. To be eligible for the program, an applicant must have been a resident of Maine for all of 2000, maintained a homestead in the state for all of 2000 and have lived in it for at least six months during 2000. To be eligible, total 2000 household income must be below $28,100 for a person who lived alone or below $43,600 for a person living with a spouse or dependent. Senior citizens 62 or older in 2000, or 55 or older if disabled, must meet the same residency requirements but have different income guidelines. For the elderly to be eligible, total 2000 household income must be below $11,200 for a person who lived alone or below $13,900 for a person who lived with a spouse or dependent. Unmarried people who share a home or apartment and meet the residency and income guidelines can file separate applications for a pro-rated share of the property tax or rent payment.

From the Bethel Police Log:

No license, no log

At 3:35 a.m. on Aug. 4 police stopped a subject on Route 2 for speeding (57 mph in a 35 mph zone). A check revealed a suspended license status and a warrant for his arrest. The driver had also failed to complete a driver's log. Stephen Greenleaf, 48, of Livermore was arrested for speeding, operating after suspension and for the warrant.

Wednesday, Aug. 1

At 8:01 p.m. police responded to an assault call on Paradise Road. Brandon S. Palmer, 19, of Bethel was arrested for disorderly conduct, assault, criminal threatening, criminal trespass and failure to submit to detention and/or arrest.

Thursday, Aug. 2

At 8:35 a.m. police received a report of theft of computer equipment from a Bethel Station office.

At 3 p.m. police responded to a Bethel Station business for a report of vandalism.

Friday, Aug. 3

At 1:58 a.m. police arrested Edward S. Chapman on Railroad Street in connection with a 911 call he had made in which he reported a fictitious motor vehicle accident.

applied, free of charge, on permanent molars on all second-graders. Mason and the staff members then donate their individual reimbursements to the SAD44 fund.

The fund currently has about $5,000 in it, with another $2,220 on the way.

The longest-running dental program in SAD44 is the K-5 classroom dental health presentation program. Mason's wife, Tracy, has been coordinating education since their daughter, Cassie (now 16) was in pre-school.

Mason said he is not familiar with all dental health programs offered in Maine, but believes this one is unique in its scope.

"It's taken many years of doing it on a hit-or-miss basis to make it run smoothly," he said.

Bear

ON THE MEND
John Carter checks over Smokey, who was attacked by a bear last week. One scar from the attack is visible on Smokey's flank. The incident has one neighbor so concerned she won't let her children outside to play.

Bears that attack farm animals, said Edmunds, "are most always male." And, he said, they're usually interested in the farm animal for food. "If they're going to continue to do it, it's best to take them out as soon as you can."

The incident has neighbor Amy Stevens very nervous. She hasn't let her two children, ages 3 and 5, outside since. Stevens' house is within a couple of hundred yards of where Smokey was attacked.

"I am so concerned with it being so close to my house," she said. "It's sad my kids can't play in my yard." Stevens has been taking the children swimming or bringing them to Davis Park to play instead.

Stevens said she generally likes animals. "I can't imagine killing anything, but if it came into my yard, I'd kill it. I just never felt like I really wanted something dead before," she said.

Stevens said her in-laws, who live nearby, had a bear come up on their porch. There have been other such reports from the Intervale Road area this summer. Carter said he had seen a large bear in one of his fields.

The biologist's view

Craig McLaughlin, bear study leader for the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, has some reassuring words about the likelihood of the bear turning on people — but no guarantees.

"I can't say it won't happen," he said. "I don't think (the attack on Smokey) translates into any sort of threat to the human population in the area. It's so remote, I wouldn't have any concerns about it myself. It would be a big jump to go from a horse to a child."

Bear attacks on humans in the Northeast are rare, he said.

McLaughlin said cases of bears attacking wildlife are less common now than earlier in the 20th century. In those days, he said, livestock were much more commonly kept outside at night, making more of them vulnerable. Today, he said, there may be a few incidents a year.

He said in some cases, a bear will first be drawn to the smell of horse or cattle feed, and only then attack the animal.

"Bears are just doing what comes naturally," said McLaughlin. "They are hungry, and they are very opportunistic. They're able and willing at times to tackle a full-grown moose." Even bears weighing between 100 and 200 pounds will sometimes take on a moose. "They're very powerful animals," he said.

As for any connection between the earlier bear/human encounters in the area and the attack on Smokey, McLaughlin said, "That type of behavior doesn't lead to preying on horses. It's hard to make that connection."

McLaughlin was also skeptical about the chances for hunting down the bear. "If they haven't found that bear by now, to find the right bear, it's like finding a needle in a haystack."

Fire

Oak tree struck

The lightning shattered a red oak tree on the south side of Farwell Mountain in Albany. The fire erupted in rocky, dry land two miles west of the Crocker Pond Campground.

Volunteer firefighters from Stoneham and Bethel were first on the scene Saturday afternoon, followed by a crew from the U.S. Forest Service. The crew worked through Sunday to contain and extinguish the fire. The low blaze burned through the leaf litter and scorched the trunks of oak and pine trees.

With no roads or trails near the fire, firefighters carried tools and gear one-and-one-half miles up the mountain through dense brush and fallen trees left from 1998's ice storm.

A crew returned to the scene Monday, and by that evening it appeared the fire was out. But when someone was sent back Tuesday morning to check again, the fire had sprung back to life. A helicopter brought water the first half of the day, Nasta said, but was then called away to a large brush fire in Oxford.

Nasta said the Forest Service crew would be on the scene of the fire the rest of this week, to make sure it is extinguished.

The U.S. Forest Service crew Sunday was assisted by members of the Bethel, Greenwood, and Sanford fire departments, as well as Greg Hesslein of the Maine Forest Service.

Andover Olde Home Days 2001

"GATEWAY TO THE LAKES AND TRAILS"

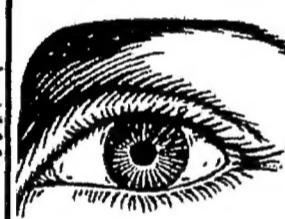

was the theme of Andover Olde Home Days 2001, which were blessed with fine weather and plenty of things to do. The parade drew a large crowd - as well as fire trucks, rescue units from as far away as Rangeley and North Yarmouth. The noise from the sirens was a bit loud for Judy Tabb and Liz Bodwell (upper left). Lower right: Lester White was honored as Andover's oldest man.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published here by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

I think that one of the nice things about this time of the year is having a cookout or a picnic. That is of course when everything goes according to plan.

I imagine that most people have at least one story of a cookout or picnic from hell.

An acquaintance of mine recently went to a cookout at someone's house and it appeared that it would be a wonderful day.

The weather was perfect for the occasion; warm and sunny with a nice breeze, no rain in sight.

Everyone was sitting around enjoying themselves having a nice conversation, kids playing and having a good time. Good food was in the offering.

This is the way a cookout should be; everyone having a good time and that's the way it was. That is until the neighbors decided to have their septic system pumped out. I'm sure there is nothing else quite like the fragrant aroma of hamburgers and hot dogs on the grill and your friendly neighborhood kaka-sucker going full tilt boogie in the neighbor's yard.

I went to a picnic over the weekend that was a surprise birthday party for my oldest grandson. This took place at a public area near a boat launch at a local lake. It really was a perfect day and Wanda, my daughter-in-law did a great job pulling it all together. She had prepared plenty of food and everyone was having a great time, the birthday boy was properly surprised and all was well except there was just a little too much sun. It was amazing to me how little shade there was considering that most of the area was surrounded by trees. However, we did manage to find a nice shady area and everyone pitched in to move chairs, picnic table and all the food.

That's when the problem arose. No one tipped the food off of the picnic table; it wasn't quite as disastrous as that, but placing table and chairs in the same shady spot that all the dogs in the area seemed to choose to do their business was a problem. Turning a picnic/birthday party into a major scoop-the-poop party wasn't really a good time for all.

Over the years I have had my share of outdoor disasters. I'm sure that everyone has.

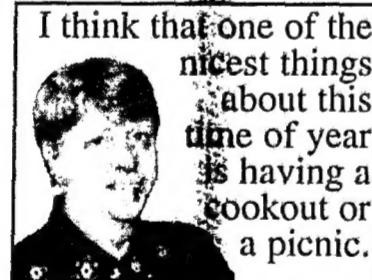

Who hasn't experienced a barbecue when an unpredicted summer thunderstorm erupted out of nowhere?

I'm sure you're familiar with the scene - everyone is sitting around having a great time, the kids are splashing in the water, the burgers are on the grill. First the wind comes up, not a nice summer cooling breeze, but a gale force, bone chilling arctic blast. All the napkins and paper plates go flying off the picnic table, beach sand and pine needles get blown onto the burgers and little Johnny's inflatable dinosaur drifts out into the middle of the lake.

You barely have enough time to retrieve the napkins and paper plates and comfort little Johnny with promises to buy him another inflatable dinosaur when the sky opens up with a torrential downpour as severe as the day Noah boarded the ark.

Everyone runs trying to gather children, towels, food and supplies (to heck with the burgers, they're already covered with sand and pine needles) and run for the car, which just so happens, is parked at the very end of the parking lot a mile away.

Now here's the part that always gets to me. You get everyone and everything into the car including crying kids, wet towels, sand and pine needles.

The Bethel Citizen

for putting quarts away for a snowy day. It takes a long time to pick a quart of blueberries. Suddenly it seems like a real deal to find a quart at the Foodliner for under $5, though they aren't Wild Maine Berries; they're the suspiciously fat ones that come up from New Jersey.

Well, berries and bears have me thinking about being a beginner. I have long been an admirer of Rainer Rilke, a German poet who once said, "Resolve to always be a beginner." (I doubt he meant one should begin hundreds of projects and never finish them.) When I heard that line echo in my brain, it seemed to come as a voice of support.

You might say I'm a beginner Mainier. If I had stayed where I was, I'd be a Massachusetts native, born and bred. But I didn't. I'm here now, kind of like the broccoli plant that I mistook for lavender. Only a beginner could make such a mistake. Yes, folks, I thought the blue-tinted leaf seedling was a new and different form of lavender so I planted it in my herb garden. It wasn't until it flowered that I recognized its true nature and transplanted it into my vegetable garden. All season, I've been thinking to myself, "God must've been a gardener." That's why slender young growing things get mercilessly plucked and thrown in the compost, giving room for others to grow strong. How else can you explain why one plant thrives and grows but the one next to it doesn't do a thing? Same garden, same gardener...totally different experience. So perhaps even God was a beginner.

I was planted in Massachusetts because I was mistaken for a different plant. Luckily, Good Orderly Direction, saw fit to transplant me into a more fitting spot...one that supports my true nature...like me recognizing the broccoli was not a lavender. And if God is a beginner and I am a beginner and the people I love are beginners, and even the authorities are beginners, then mistake-making becomes a non-issue. And suddenly, I can dare to live and I can dare to laugh at myself being the beginner Mainier that I am. So much for bears, blueberries and beginners.

Andover

by Joan Stinson Carney

I want to extend my condolences to the family of Charlotte Sennett who died last week. Charlotte was a member of the East Andover Community Club for many years, and a dear friend. She will be greatly missed.

The people of the Town of Andover want to thank Betty Moore for her donation of the American flag in honor of her late husband, Sam. It will fly on the town common soon. I will remind you all again that we appreciate these flag donations; they make the common just a little more special when you see the flag and know that it flies in honor of someone connected to the town.

Well, as if last Saturday in Andover didn't have enough excitement because of Olde Home Days, great weather, really good crowd, great entertainment, really wonderful parade, exhibits, and so on, we had another exciting, unplanned event take place on the Grimaldi Field. The Med-Evac Helicopter had to land to pick up an injured child to transport to a hospital. The child, who wasn't paying attention while riding his bike, hit a car. He is in stable condition, thank heaven, but I wonder about the condition of the young man that was driving the car. I know how I felt when a dog hit my car. I was at a stoplight at the time and I didn't know if I would ever drive again. Just imagine what it would be like to have a child involved, even if it wasn't your fault. I hate to meet or try to pass someone on a bike, so kids please take it real easy if you are on a bike, pay attention and remember, "left is always right." End of sermon.

Speaking of sermons, I want to welcome the Rev. John and Mrs. Lisa O'Keefe and their three children, Michael, Christine and Elizabeth, to town. The Rev. O'Keefe is the new pastor of the Calvary Congregational Church.

A get well card can be sent to Marilyn White of East Andover, who fell and broke her leg last week.

I want to thank the hardworking, very underpaid, very tired, Olde Home Day Committee members for the wonderful job they did last weekend. Even if I didn't win one prize, the fifty-fifty, one miserable prize, nothing, nothing at all, they still did a great job. I'll mention their names as soon as I have them all, so I don't forget anybody.

SUDSBURY CANADA DAYS

Aug. 10, 11 and 12

On the grounds of the Robinson, Mason and Hastings Houses
Broad Street, Bethel

Sudsbury Canada was Bethel's name from the time of the granting of this western Maine township in 1768 to its incorporation in 1796. This early name honored the original grantees from Sudsbury, Mass., who had fought unsuccessfully to conquer Canada in 1690. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts rewarded these men with land in the "District of Maine," naming it in honor of their Massachusetts town and the campaign in which they served. Bethel was never part of Canada. "Sudsbury Canada Days," the summer heritage festival of the Bethel Historical Society, honors the town's rich heritage dating from the 18th century.

If you want your visitors mentioned, please send me a note and I will be happy to include them. My dog, Rocky, had a blast loudly welcoming every new arrival. It is with true regret that I must tell you about the resignation of Mark Thurston from the Andover Board of Selectmen. His resignation will take effect on Aug. 15. He was a joy to work with, and all of us at the town office will really miss him.

The Fuller Family Reunion was held at the Ladies Aid Building on Sunday, Aug. 5. There were extended family members from several states present. Ken and Carla Beddo came all the way from California for the event. Walter Stanczyk has been an "Internet" friend of theirs for several years now.

Summer visitors continue to enjoy their camps. The swimming has been excellent since the warm weather raised the temperature of the water higher than the "hypothermia level" that it usually is. At times during the summer if you put your feet down too far in the river you can encounter some of last winter's ice. The sunsets have been spectacular and the night sky bright with stars and a full moon. One night last week Evelyn Kenney called and alerted us to the passage of the "Space Station" in orbit over the lake. Richard and I had a great view from the beach. It passed quite rapidly but was very obvious to the eye.

The hornets continue to plague the hummingbirds at the feeder. I hung a "bee catcher gadget" near the feeder. It's full of sticky sugar water and a scent that is supposed to attract them. So far all I've caught are a few flies.

Boston Vocal Artists at Deertrees

On Sunday, Aug. 26 at 7 p.m., Deertrees Theatre in Harrison will present Boston Vocal Artists in a concert of operatic songs, arias and ensembles.

The vivacious local coloratura soprano, Anastasia Shedd will be joined by Boston-based singers, soprano Susan Brownfield, baritone Aaron Engebretson, mezzo-soprano Joanne Katsoulis and tenor Thomas Oesterling. Pianist and music director Stearn Morris began Boston Vocal Artists two years ago to provide performing opportunities for young singers.

After last summer's success with Minotti's "The Telephone" and Donizetti's "Rita," Morris has chosen a program filled with such delights as the sumptuous duet from Delila's "Labeme," the quartet from Verdi's "Rigoletto," Dorita's soaring aria from Puccini's "Las Rondine" as well as other selections by Mozart, Bizet, Douziti and Bellini.

The talent in this group of singers is far-reaching. Already Shedd has performance credits all over Maine and in France. Brownfield, a Metropolitan Opera competition semi-finalist, has sung the roles of Tuptim in "The King and I" for the Westchester Theatre (N.Y.) and Mimi in "La Bohème" at Harvard University's Lowell House Opera and has just returned from participating in many productions with Utah Festival Opera. Katsoulis has performed with Portland Opera Repertory Theater, Saras Opera, and Opera Aegeon. Oesterling has sung many roles with Boston Lyric Opera, Commonwealth Opera and Ocean State Lyric Opera. Equally familiar with opera and oratorio, Engebretson has sung in Japan with the Pacific Music Festival and most recently in the Boston Early Music Festival's critically acclaimed performance of Lally's "The sec." Pianist and vocal coach Stearn Morris has played in England, Italy and throughout New England and the Midwest. For further information and tickets, call 583-6747 or 647-5145.

Boston Vocal Artists hope to orchestrate two or three more performances in the greater Lakes Region area in the coming year, such as Gilbert and Sullivan or Light and Comic opera. BVA is interested in using local talent for chorus and some roles. Anyone interested in being part of future performances in any way (performing, technical or supporting) is asked to contact Boston Vocal Artists at 647-5145.

Five Indian Maiden Doll. Lucille Largesse has completed a fishing scene wall hanging. All these articles will be raffled. Tables are available to anyone who wishes to sell their wares. There is no charge. There will be a white elephant table, also.

We had a visit from a bear on our front porch Saturday night. He tore the screen off the porch door. I had left a bag of dill and vinegar potato chips on the table. He obviously doesn't like vinegar because he dropped the bag on the floor and left the area.

The birds are everywhere. We have a mother blue heron and her offspring fishing the cove all day. Two eagles are frequently seen scouting the area. Flickers are ant hunting on the roadside. A brown thrasher flew across Route 26 while I was driving to Errol.

The Brown Thrasher is the "Bird of the Week." This blue-jay-sized bird dwells in roadside thickets and scrub fields. His rapid low flights across the roadways gives us only a brief viewing of the bird. He is a handsome fellow with rufous brown coloring above and white feathers streaked with dark brown beneath. His song is similar to a mocking bird. They are very protective of their nests, building them of coarse twigs and leaves. It is lined with soft grass. There are usually four or five pale blue, brown dotted eggs. The nest is hidden in a deep, thorny shrub.

Our sympathy is offered to Rose Travers and her family on the death of John Travers, her husband of many years. He will be sadly missed by the town of Errol, where he had been a longtime resident.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson
Hi readers. Here it is the second day of August and I haven't turned the desk calendar yet. Guess I'd better get with it, or else.

Don't forget the annual turkey supper at the East Stoneham Church on Aug. 16, Thursday, 5 to 6:30 p.m. You better be there early. We need more manpower on these suppers and things. Also, I need someone to sit at the bake sale table on Aug. 11. Any takers?

Yesterday, on the way to Evergreen Valley, I saw two adult wild turkeys and two little ones, and on the way home, I saw what appeared to be a fox late at night. It could have been a bobcat. It's hard to see at night when they go along the road and then into the woods.

Yesterday, we attended the Northland Telephone free picnic at the Fryeburg office lawn. There was plenty of hot dogs, hamburgers, cheeseburgers, potato salad, cold drinks, beautiful cake and watermelon. The workers were very courteous and helpful, and even went out and got sugar-free drinks for the diabetics. That sure was appreciated, and it was nice under the big, open tent. They always have a good number of people attending. I called today to see how many people they had, but I only got music and press this number or press that number, so got no answer to my simple question. That irritates me to talk to a machine that won't answer me.

Dean Saunders did some work for Frances Grant a few days this past week.

Loretta Andrews is still at Althea Sawyer's home in Fryeburg recovering after recent surgery. She is doing quite well and hopes to be home soon.

I heard that the chicken barbecue we like to go to at North Fryeburg Fire Station is on Aug. 11.

Vacation Bible School will be Aug. 13 to 17, from 9 to 11 a.m., at the North Waterford Church.

Worship services are held at North Waterford Church for the month of August.

Hymn Sing and Ice Cream Social is at 7 p.m. at the North Waterford Church on Aug. 19.

Have you seen the front side of the Hillside Cemetery in Stoneham? It has been graded and covered with rich loam and grass seed and has a protective covering over that. It will certainly improve the looks of the entrance to the town of Stoneham. They say the squeaky wheel gets the most grease, and I guess that has been griped about for quite some time and finally got some results. Now, if the tipped-over stones could be fixed, things would really look good there.

Sympathy is also extended to Evelyn T. Bean in the death of her brother, Donald Thurston, on Wednesday.

Mary and Roland McMillian called on her aunt, Beatrice Farman, last week.

Maggie and Joseph Hoyt have been spending several days with their father, James Hoyt and grandparents, Alice and Ken Hoyt. They returned home on Wednesday. Joseph celebrated his birthday while he was here. Shawn Crockett spent a couple days visiting his grandparents, Ken and Alice Hoyt, and also Marybeth Hoover visited.

There are classes for all ages.

The Mahoosuc Arts Council will hold a Grange Hall tour at Franklin Grange on Friday, Aug. 10. Supper is at 6 p.m. and served by the Grange. Cost of both supper and program is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children. The public is invited to attend.

Judith Grover Tent 17 will not meet on Aug. 13, but on the fourth Monday this month, Aug. 27.

There will be a Blood Drive on Aug. 13 at the American Legion Hall in Locke Mills, from 1 to 6 p.m., sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary and Franklin Grange.

Please come and donate blood.

Beatrice Farnum last Tuesday. Curator Larry Billings has given a large oil painting of a covered bridge to the Historical Society. He has also given two sets of jewelry. A group of about 20 people visited the museum one Friday. They remarked very favorably on the quantity of exhibits. One man called the museum a "treasure trove." Kathleen Bean and Elena Noyes were supposed to watch the museum that Saturday. Larry just finished a book, "Second Coming" by Walker Percy and is currently reading a book by Norman Mailer. He set up an exhibit of jewelry recently in the museum. The Maine State Library sent a check for three copies of "Hamlin's Gore," and the Lewiston Public Library called about getting a copy. Larry originally wrote to both.

Don't forget History Day on Aug. 18, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. There will be a flea market, food sale, sale tables and museum tours.

Notice: There will be a benefit supper held for Larry and Pam Poland and children, Aug. 9, at 5:30 p.m. at the Thurlow Hall, South Woodstock. Adults $5 and children under 6 free. The family has had their share of bad luck, and recently Pam had a real bad ankle break. Please plan to attend.

Our neighbor, Frank Frazer, brought us some summer squash he had grown. It was delicious. Thanks.

I was sorry to hear of Harry Hutchinson's accident while returning from the fair with some animals he had purchased there. His truck burned and a few of the small animals died.

Sympathy goes out to the family and friends of Clementine Jordan, who died recently. Several close relatives of Mrs. Jordan live in this area.

The Woodstock road crew fixed an area at Andrew's Corner one morning last week.

Special happy anniversary wishes go out to our children, Brad and Kellie Record, and Rick and Sally Wing.

Larry Billings, curator of the Woodstock Historical Society, reports that he has finished reading the novel, "The Second Coming," by Walker Percy. He has been studying some contemporary literature lately. Curator Billings has also given a book on the Civil War to the museum. The society has a book by Ruby Emery in the museum about soldiers in the various wars in U.S. history.

West Paris

Greetings for a truly summery week, our third in a row. Summer is really here with 90 degrees and above.

Did you all notice the beautiful and unusual sunset and cloud pattern Saturday evening? I had just driven over to Mallard Mart to fill up the old gas tank and noticed people stopped and pointing up at the western sky. Upon looking, I decided to take a few pictures for posterity. Besides such strange cloud patterns and beautiful color there was a lot of lightning playing back and forth through the clouds — some heat and some chain lightning. Even stranger, this cloudbank never moved — at least for about three hours — it remained stationary in the western quadrant of the sky. To the east the sky was clear blue and finally star-studded. To the south there were light, fluffy clouds that were partially transparent — very different. I took some pictures with regular film and others with special nighttime film.

Another curious oddity — have you noticed that raspberries, blackberries and blueberries are all ripe together this year? Fall asters, brown-eyed susans, goldenrod and ragweed blossomed the last week of July, also.

On Aug. 2, West Paris Grange 198 observed Ladies Night, preceded by a 6:45 p.m. dessert party at their hall. Holding office that night were: master, Connie Tutilis; John R. Mason, D.D.S., P.O. Box 570, 44 Northwest Bethel Road, Bethel, Maine 04217 (207) 824-3378

West Paris Grange will hold their next public Covered Dish Supper on Saturday, Aug. 18, from 5 to 6 p.m. at their hall on Church Street. Cost of supper will be $5 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12.

West Paris Baptist and West Paris Congregational churches held a wonderful and successful Vacation Bible School this last week with 63 enrolled. Thank you all for attending. It was a blessed event. Thanks to the following people for making this a huge success: Mary and Tom Standard for heading up this year's study and craft programs; Janice Rosenberg, Bertha DeHaas and Jane Littlehale, food; Bruce Tyner and Cheryl Bacon, games; for teaching, Miss Marilyn and Miss Virginia for doing such an excellent job; and the following folks for filling in where needed: Marion Enman, Esther and Alpheus Brooks, Anna Swan, Kathy Scherf, Leah and Debi Hanev, and all others (some mothers whose names I do not know). Many, many thanks to you all.

THE JAIL

A 1930s sign in what was Grafton (now Grafton Notch State Park) marks "The Jail" a natural rock formation on Bear River that has attracted visitors since the 19th century. "The needle's eye" refers to the small passage that provides an entrance to the rock enclosure. Now unmarked, it is at the top of the first hill above Screw-August Falls. This photograph is among thousands that can be found at the Bethel Historical Society, which also possesses an outstanding collection of manuscripts, books, documents, and artifacts relating to western Maine and northern New Hampshire. The Society is currently raising funds to establish its Regional History Center and to renovate the 1821 O'Neil Robinson House on Broad Street, which now houses exhibit galleries, offices, and the museum shop. Completion of this project will provide for improved storage space and greater access to collections as well as rooms devoted to educational activities, genealogical and historical research, and traditional crafts. Once the Center is fully operational it will offer an expanded series of lectures, special events, conferences, courses, seminars, and publications. To learn more about this project, call the Society at 207-824-2908 or 800-824-2910, write to us at our e-mail address: bethelhistory@ctel.net or visit our web site at www.ctel.net/~bethelhistory.

sides the quizzes and skits presented, there was a demonstration by Vicki Huff and Haven Nelson, who showed their talents in singing to songs. They had been previous winners in a "sign a song" contest. During the meeting, a donation was made to the Alzheimer's Foundation and resolutions of respect were read for Albert Lord, who had passed away recently.

The next meeting is Aug. 7 at West Paris Grange 298, starting with a 6:30 p.m. supper. A community service award will be presented.
